Return of the Alumni

Perfect football weather. An undefeated Saluki team. Good times, good friends.

Homecoming 1983 on Nov. 5—with the theme “Return of the Alumni”—played witness to records set in football and in attendance at McAndrew Stadium.

The alumni returned, and so did their spirit and enthusiasm for SIUC. We recap that weekend for you in this issue, with articles on:

- John E. King named the 1983 Alumni Great Teacher, page 6,
- the new Alumni Association officers and board, above and page 5,
- Homecoming photos, pages 6-7,
- the football Salukis, still undefeated at press time (10-0) and rated number one in the 1-AA division, page 12.

ALSO INSIDE: $2.9 million in gifts to SIU Foundation (page 2); the Alumni Emeritus College, and how you can help (page 5); and a preview of the Saluki basketball season (page 12).

Gifts to SIU Foundation Exceed $2.9 Million in Past Fiscal Year

Increasing interest in quality education at SIUC is resulting in increased financial support by alumni and other friends.

Gifts totaling $2,916,372 were received by the SIU Foundation in the past fiscal year, compared to $1,967,965 the previous year. This amount is in addition to gifts made directly to the university and to individual departments or schools.

Equally as significant is the impressive 34 percent jump in the number of individual gifts—from 13,404 in fiscal 82 to 18,011 in fiscal 83.

Stan McAnally, president of the SIU Foundation, is particularly pleased with that 34 percent increase. "The most important part of the total development program of the university is the involvement of our alumni," McAnally said in announcing the totals. Over 12 percent of the alumni body gave a gift to the Foundation last year, ahead of the year before and just slightly under national average. McAnally's goal is to raise this figure to 25 percent.

The amount of the gift is less important than the number of people who give to the university, McAnally emphasized. A supportive alumni body makes it easier for the Foundation to attract corporate gifts. "When we present proposals to corporations," McAnally said, "they'll always ask us, 'How many of your alumni give to the university?' If the percentage of alumni giving is high, the implication is that the university is doing a good job."

Gifts to the Foundation are distributed to SIUC by the recommendation of the Foundation's Board of Directors, which considers proposals submitted by the university.

Among the grants from the Foundation in fiscal 83 were $75,000 for scholarships, $25,000 for research, $25,000 for improvements in Morris Library, and $6,000 for two distinguished professorships.

On October 28, 1983, the Foundation's board approved an additional $100,000 for scholarships that will be used to recruit high-ability students in the 1984-85 academic year. The Foundation has also established National Merit scholarships to attract these finalists to SIUC.

Within five years, the SIU Foundation hopes to have increased the level of giving to $5 million per year. Expectations are high that this goal can be reached. Since July 1, 1983, for example, gifts in kind (equipment and other materials) have already exceeded the total raised during the previous 12 months.

"Private giving is vitally important," McAnally said, "because many university programs can't be funded directly from the state," even if such monies were available. Private gifts make possible high-quality extras—resources, research, staffing and scholarships that will make SIUC among the highest-quality institutions in the country.

A renewed emphasis is also being placed on alumni services and on phone calls and direct mail contacts with alumni. (See related articles, inside, on the Foundation's Telefund campaign and the Alumni Emeritus College.)

"The Foundation's chief objective is to serve in partnership with the university to enhance the overall quality of education being provided students," McAnally said. The partnership includes the alumni themselves, who are responding generously and in increasing numbers to the goal of superior education at SIUC.

Giving Is Up at All Levels

Foreign Graduates Will Benefit From Proposed Re-entry Program

Albert Somit recently completed a one-month tour of the Far East to cement ties to overseas universities.

Foreign graduates who have spent from two to six years at SIUC sometimes face adjustment problems when they return home.

Under a plan proposed by SIUC President Albert Somit, however, foreign graduates will find it easier to return to their native countries. In turn, they'll be able to help the next group of students who are coming to SIUC.

The proposed re-entry program is now under study by Charles B. Klasek, director of International Education at SIUC.

Somit and Klasek spent one month touring the Far East this fall. The major purpose of the trip was to cement educational ties with the People's Republic of China, Nepal, Malaysia and Hong Kong. (See "Highlights of Far East Trip," below.)

The men also met SIUC alumni in each country and, from them, learned of their difficulties in readjusting to their former way of life.

"Many had left right out of high school and now didn't even know how to look for a job in their own countries," Somit said. "They often found there was no program to evaluate how effective their U.S. education had been or to suggest how the next group of students going to the United States could profit from their experiences."

The proposed program will be based in the native countries. "The graduates' governments, which helped send them to the United States, should know that they are returning, what experiences they had, and which institutions were particularly helpful and which weren't," Somit said.

The debriefing program will help the graduates explain what they learned at SIUC in the context of their native cultures.

The program will avoid "the tremendous cultural shock" that can occur in both coming to the United States and returning home, Somit said.

In China, for example, Somit and Klasek met Sun Jian-Qiu, who had earned a master's degree in English at SIUC in 1982. "She told us that her teachers here had driven her much harder than her Chinese instructors had," Klasek said. "In fact, she was quite upset here at first. But when she returned home, and her supervisors looked over her credentials, she was told she would start immediately teaching graduate students."

"She told us, 'My education at SIUC was outstanding. I'll tell that to anybody,'" Klasek said.

Through a re-entry program, a student such as Sun Jian-Qiu could have been told by alumni in her country what to expect at SIUC.

Somit and Klasek also attended several alumni meetings and helped organize two new SIUC alumni clubs, one in Nepal and one in Malaysia.

Carbondale: One Of 50 Best Towns

Hugh Bayless came to Carbondale, saw it—and has now praised it in his new book, The Best Towns in America (Houghton-Mifflin, 1983).

Bayless, a writer living in California, has chosen Carbondale as one of the 50 best places to find a better life in the U.S.

Carbondale "is an important trade and educational center, the home of Southern Illinois University," Bayless wrote in his chapter on the town. SIUC "provides a wide variety of continuing-education courses for adults in the area" and is "a multipurpose institution."

In making his final selections, Bayless visited numerous cities and towns across the country. He paid particular attention to clean air, convenience, lack of congestion, safety, a relatively inexpensive lifestyle, and solid educational and cultural opportunities.

Most of the 50 towns chosen by Bayless are located in the midwest, southeastern and southwestern states.

Bayless automatically excluded towns with over 100,000 population. When the number of people reaches and exceeds that figure, Bayless believes, the levels of crime, smog and congestion begin to affect the quality of life in those areas.

Jackson County, where Carbondale is located, has a population of 57,400. Carbondale was chosen as an All America City in 1972.

Morris Library Goes "On Line"

This fall, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale students, faculty and staff are finding that Morris Library has vastly expanded its ability to provide books and other materials they need.

SIUC has become fully operational in the Library Computer System (LCS), one of the largest such projects in the nation to date, according to library officials.

The computer system was made possible by a two-year, $370,000 Library Resources Sharing Grant through the Higher Education Cooperation Act.

Highlights of Far East Trip

SIUC President Albert Somit's month-long trip to the Far East produced a thick portfolio of exchange programs negotiated with Far East universities. Among the highlights of that trip:

- An exchange of students and faculty between SIUC and four universities in the People's Republic of China. Under the plan, as many as six SIUC faculty members would teach English in China; several others would teach primarily technical subjects. The Chinese universities would offer scholarships to SIUC students to study in China. In turn, China would send senior faculty to SIUC to teach Chinese art, history, mathematics and philosophy.
- A possible $1.4 million scholarship program to send Hong Kong students to SIUC. Hong Kong financier Dr. C. W. Chu plans to initiate this program and to visit SIUC in December to continue the negotiations.
- An exchange of students and faculty with Tribhuvan University in Katmandu, Nepal. The program is funded by a $44,500 grant from the U.S. Agency for International Development.
- The continuance of an in-country general studies program in Malaysia. Some 100 undergraduate students will be enrolled in January.

Donations to STC Total $215,000

The School of Technical Careers (STC) at SIUC has recently received equipment donations valued at $215,000.

Tool-manufacturing equipment worth $200,000 was given by Colt Industries' Elox Division, Davidson, N.C. Computer-related equipment worth $15,000 was donated by Texas Instruments, Inc., Houston and Dallas.

Elox is providing a $150,000 electronic discharge machine (EDM), described as a state-of-the-art wire cut machine used in tool and die manufacturing. Elox is also donating the computer that drives the EDM, training for instructors, an audio-visual training program, and all expenses and labor to move and set up the equipment.

Elox will donate a new EDM to the school each year, removing it at the end of the spring semester and replacing it with the latest high-tech EDM machine.

"The gift from Elox represents a partnership between industry and education, and demonstrates Elox's continuing commitment to education," said Harry Soderstrom, coordinator of the tool and manufacturing technology program at STC.

The donation by Texas Instruments includes two professional microcomputer systems software, microprocessor testing equipment, an instructional project on speech synthesizing "chips," a technical library, and other material.

"We are very pleased that a company like Texas Instruments recognizes the benefits of a working relationship between industry and education and is willing to help support our program," said William G. Shupe, acting director of STC's electronics technology program.

The microcomputers will boost SIUC's program because they can be used in computer-aided design work for complex electronic circuitry, Shupe added.

The Texas Instruments' payroll includes many SIUC graduates. The company hopes to recruit more SIUC graduates in the future.

PARENTS OF THE DAY—Eugene V. and Donna M. Biggs of Murphysboro, Ill., pose with their daughter, Gay, a junior in SIUC's College of Education. The couple, both 1971 SIUC graduates, were honored as the University's "Parents of the Day" on October 8, 1983, as a result of an essay competition won by their daughter. Biggs is a flight instructor in the School of Technical Career's Aviation Technology program, while his wife is an assistant to the business manager at the SIUC Student Center.

Memorial Service For McFarlin

More than 200 persons attended a memorial service for Harold McFarlin on Oct. 12 in the SIUC Student Center Auditorium.

McFarlin, former associate professor of history at SIUC, died Oct. 4 of acute organ rejection at Stanford University Medical Center in Palo Alto, Calif., 52 days after undergoing a heart transplant operation. McFarlin, 47, underwent heart transplant surgery Aug. 13 at Stanford after some three years of treatment for congestive heart failure.

A Southern Illinois areawide fund-raising drive netted some $60,000 early this year to defray costs of McFarlin's surgery that were not covered by insurance.

Several members of McFarlin's family were present at the memorial service.

Worth Noting . . .

... The SIUC debate team reached a number two ranking in the nation at the end of October 1983, after the first three weeks of tournament competition. To date this year, a total of 108 schools in 32 states have been involved in sanctioned tournaments.

... Sharon Buchanan McClure has been appointed the governmental relations officer for the SIU system. She will coordinate the university's relations with the Illinois General Assembly and the rest of the state government system.

... Full restitution to SIUC of about $1 million is part of the U.S. District Court order for Barry L. Bateman, former executive director of the SIUC computing affairs division, and his assistant, Edward Hubert Massey. The two men were sentenced on Sept. 27 to three years' imprisonment for conspiracy to defraud, mail fraud and interstate transportation of fraudulently obtained money. The charges were related to schemes which allegedly defrauded SIUC of more than $1 million in connection with the purchase of computer equipment between 1976 and 1981.

... Scholarships of $300 each were recently awarded by the STC (School of Technical Careers) Alumni Constituent Society to two students: Suzanne L. Groll and Samuel S. Rowell III.

... Elizabeth P. Lance, assistant professor of speech communication, has been named the 1983 Outstanding Faculty Advisor by the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA).

Air Illinois Crash Kills Lorenz, Baker

Two SIUC faculty members and two SIUC alumni were among the 10 persons killed Oct. 11 in the crash of Air Illinois Flight 710 near Pinckneyville.

The dead included Jerome L. Lorenz, director of the Rehabilitation Institute; Richard J. Baker, coordinator for Rehabilitation Administration and Services at the Rehabilitation Institute; Lester R. Smith, '75, pilot of the aircraft; and Barbara J. Huffman, ex '78, senior flight attendant.

Longterm Planning Sets Priorities for Academics

A two-year study of academic programs has culminated in specific plans for changes in academics at SIUC.

The study, conducted by the Committee on Academic Priorities, is seen as a positive step in more closely matching student needs with university programs in the years ahead. Final decisions on the committee recommendations were announced in September 1983 by John C. Guyon, Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research at SIUC.

Under the plan, the Department of Computer Science will be enhanced as more resources are shifted into its programs. Guyon said that "Acquisition of additional resources for Computer Science has been a well established institutional need and goal for some time."

In addition, the Physics Department, with "an excellent record of research productivity and instructional competence," according to Guyon, will be given priority for program enhancement in the next few years.

The Honors Program, which "has been moving in the proper direction to establish an appropriate academic climate for our talented students," will also be enhanced in the years ahead, said Guyon.

Over 200 programs were studied by the committee, and the vast majority will be maintained. Consolidations, reductions and modest adjustments will help shift resources to the strongest areas. The committee looked closely at duplication of programs, faculty involvement and students interests, with a view toward efficiency.

Seven programs will be eliminated under the plan. The seven programs are the M.A. in Foreign Language and Literatures, although master's level work will continue in specific languages; the A.A.S. in Correctional Services; the M.S. in Home Economics Education; the B.A. in Design; the M.S. in Environmental Design; the M.S. in Human Development; and both the B.A. and M.A. in Latin American Studies. The latter program may eventually reappear within a consolidated single program called International Studies.

Students currently enrolled in degree programs targeted for future elimination will be able to complete the programs. Reductions and consolidations in effected departments will begin in either 1984 or 1985.

Close attention is also being given to changes in the general education requirements of SIUC and in the admissions requirements. These changes "will enhance the educational environment of the Institution," Guyon said, and will fall in line with attention being paid on the national and state level to improving the overall climate of education.

"In our planning, we must be cognizant of the realities of shifting student interests, student population size, and available resources," Guyon said, "yet keep in mind opportunities for program enhancement and development."

A separate group, the Non-Academic Program Priorities Committees, studied administrative tasks and structures. The committee's two-year study was submitted to Albert Somit, President of SIUC. In September 1983, Somit issued his decisions on the committee's recommendations. Some efficiencies and economies have already been instituted across the SIUC campus.

Critical Paddling

In 1905, I started grammar school at the old Normal Building [Old Main]. My Criticism teacher was Miss Tabby Wilson, a lovely person, even if she did paddle me once.

Some of the other teachers were Cathryn Colyer (daughter of Professor Frank Colyer), Zeta Minner, Helen Smith, Reid Compton, Miss Granny Wertz (a wonderful woman), Professor Washington Davis, Professor George Browne, Professor John Pierce, Professor George Wham, and many others.

Those were wonderful days!

Turn back in your flight,
And make me a boy again,
Just through the night."*

Las Vegas Cheer

I noticed in the September 1983 issue of the Alumnus that the Saluki basketball team is entered in the Las Vegas Rebel Round-Up tournament on December 22-23.

I'm inviting all SIUC alumni who attend the tournament to stop in at my tavern, Jack's Place, for "a bit of holiday cheer" while visiting Las Vegas.

I imagine that there will be an excellent turnout for the game. Our winter weather is usually one heck of a lot nicer than that of the midwestern and eastern states, and our city is the "entertainment capital" of the world.

I'll look forward to seeing the visiting alumni and friends of SIUC.

Annual Telefund Teamed Up Enthused Alums and Students

"Hey," said an SIUC student to his friend sitting at the next phone, "I just talked to some sweet people!"

Twenty student volunteers were on the phones that evening, Nov. 1, 1983, as part of the seven-week annual on-campus Telefund. The major goal was to raise $50,000 in gifts for the University.

But there was another purpose, and it was working: to match alumni ("sweet people") with students in the alums' former degree programs.

Lucy Reyes, a senior in STC's avionics program, talked that evening to an avionics graduate who gave her good pointers in looking for a job. "He also asked me to say hello to one of his old teachers, who is my teacher, too," Reyes said.

Greg Vonachen, a junior in aviation technology, had reached "a lot of grads from the late '60s and early '70s who asked me questions about the school." And Marsha Rodwell, a junior in avionics, said alumni wanted to find out, "What's changed on campus?"

For all three students, the Telefund was "fun" and the cause "a good one." For the 30,000 alumni who were expected to be called during the Oct. 3-Nov. 20 period, the Telefund brought a good reminder of SIUC.

By the end of October, some 23 percent of alumni called had made a pledge, at an average of $20 each. Anne Carman, who organized the Telefund, said that donations would also come from some of the persons who hadn't been home on the evenings they were called. Those alumni will receive pledge slips with personal greetings from the students who had attempted to reach them.

Carman is the director of the annual giving for the SIU Foundation, sponsor of the Telefund. She praised the SIUC department leaders who helped recruit some 700 student and faculty volunteers, the largest turnout in the Telefund program. "Every school and college except one responded to the call for volunteers," Carman said, and several colleges staffed the phones for more than one evening.

The on-campus calls were only part one of the Telefund program.

Beginning in January 1984 and running through May, part two of the drive will be handled by alumni chapters organizing phone calls to local graduates. This part of the Telefund will generate pledges for SIUC scholarships to be awarded to students who live in the particular local areas.

The scholarship distribution will be based on the percent of participation of alumni who live in the area and on the amount those graduates give to the program.

"We are hoping for seven or eight volunteers from each alumni chapter to make the calls," Carman said. The local Telefund is expected to bring in an additional $20,000 for scholarships. (See the Alumni Calendar, this issue, for the dates of several local Telefund drives.)

STC students Vonachen and Rodwell, who will be seniors next year, are already thinking ahead to the fall 1984 on-campus Telefund: "We'll volunteer again." And Lucy Reyes, who will graduate in May 1984, may be one of the alumni who will be called.

For students and alumni, the Telefund brings together two groups of people pulling for the same goal: the betterment of the University.

Greg Vonachen, a junior in aviation technology, gets ready to make another call as other STC volunteers take part in the annual Telefund.

Presidential Scholarships Program Receives $100,000 Funding

A $100,000 grant from the SIU Foundation will set up Presidential Scholarships for some 200 incoming freshmen in the fall of 1984.

SIUC President Albert Somit, in making the announcement, said that "scholarships of this nature play a central role in building a strong, productive program with high-quality students."

Presidential Scholarship recipients are required to have ACT scores of at least 26 (36 is the perfect score) or to rank in the upper 10 percent of their high school graduating classes.

The new scholarship program was made possible through private gifts from alumni and other friends.

The grant is one of three recent scholarship programs funded by the SIU Foundation. In June 1983, the Foundation provided $75,000 to SIUC for 71 freshmen scholarships of $500 each for the 1983-84 academic year.

The Foundation has also established

National Merit Scholarships to attract National Merit finalists to SIUC. Two finalists are currently enrolled through this program, which provides awards of $500 for four academic years.

James R. Brigham, chairman of the SIU Foundation Board of Directors, said the Presidential Scholarships program reflects the Foundation's expanded role in raising money for needs that exist in the University.

The Foundation will also continue to provide scholarships through private gifts "for as many National Merit finalists as the University can recruit," Bingham said.

The Foundation scholarship awards have been a significant factor in attracting high-ability students to SIUC, according to Jerre C. Pfaff, associate director of the Office of Admissions and Records. "It's the kind of incentive that can tip the scales in a decision to attend a certain school," Pfaff said.

Freshman ACT Scores and Rankings Show Significant Increases

Incoming SIUC freshmen for the fall 1983 semester, as a group, had higher high school rankings and ACT scores than freshmen who enrolled in the fall 1983 semester.

Some 231 incoming freshmen (13.2 percent) ranked in the top 10 percent of their high school graduating classes this year. This compares favorably to 191 freshmen (10.4 percent) who held that ranking in 1982.

Incoming freshmen in 1983 also posted higher scores on the ACT exam. Some 266 freshmen (15.2 percent) placed in top 10 percent of the ACT rankings this year, compared to 208 freshmen (11.3 percent) the year before.

Women students showed the most significant increases in high school rankings and ACT scores, according to the figures.

The above numbers pertain to all freshmen who are enrolled in a four-year baccalaureate program.

"It needs to be stressed that the increase in the numbers of students at these high rankings was primarily due to the academic scholarships offered by our office," said Jerre C. Pfaff, associate director of the Office of Admissions and Records. Pfaff said that the promotional efforts of Thomas E. McGinnis, of Admissions and Records, and George C. Brown, director of the University Honors program, "had considerable impact in attracting a greater number of academically capable students for the fall semester."

In addition, more scholarships were made available to freshmen this fall.

Total fall enrollment at SIUC stands at 23,383. The number of international students rose by 8 percent over last year, to 2,002 who are seeking degrees at the undergraduate and graduate level. Malaysian students represent the University's largest foreign student population, figures show.

The total number of foreign students in all programs is 2,319. SIUC now ranks as number 8 in the nation in foreign student enrollment (up from 14th in 1982 and 30th in 1981).

The number of graduate students on campus rose to 3,261 this fall, from 3,043 the year before.

Overall SIUC enrollment for the fall 1983 fell by 1.4 percent compared to the year before. The decrease was less than the University had anticipated, however. Enrollment declines were posted by seven of the 13 public senior institutions in Illinois this semester. Five showed very slight increases and one university had equal enrollment.

Nationwide, college enrollment is showing continued declines, largely due to the higher costs of a college education and to options available at two-year schools. Increased attention to scholarship programs and holding down costs at SIUC, however, should help to attract more students over the long term.

New Alumni Board Members Installed at Homecoming

Three incumbents and three newcomers were elected at Homecoming to serve terms on the Alumni Association's board of directors.

Incumbents elected to serve their second four-year term are: Rodney A. Clutts, '70, of Cobden; Harold A. Kuehn, '51, of Du Quoin; and W. Ray Mofield, Ph.D. '64, of Hardin, Ky.

Newcomers are: James T. Gildersleeve, '72, of Hudson; Robert L. Mees, '67, M.S. '69, Ph.D. '79, of Carterville; and Richard N. Small, '58, M.S. '65, of Springfield.

Gildersleeve will serve the one-year unexpired term of Jack W. Murphy, '54, MSed '57, Ph.D. '71, of Herrin, who died Dec. 17, 1982, of an apparent heart attack. Mees and Small will serve four-year terms.

- Clutts, the state's attorney in Union County, Ill., was first elected to the board in 1979. Currently the president of the Union County Alumni Club, he also has served as secretary and vice president. He and his wife, Susan, '72, MSed '74, have five children.

- Kuehn was first elected to the Alumni board of directors in 1979 and served as vice president in 1981. Kuehn is the past president of the American Soybean Association and founder and director of the Land of Lincoln Soybean Association. He was named the SIUC School of Agriculture Alumnus of the Year in 1972. He is a farmer and lives with his wife, Nora, in Du Quoin, Ill.

- Mofield, the new president of the Association, is a professor of radio and television at Murray State University in Murray, Ky. (See the related article about Mofield's plans for his presidential year.)

- Gildersleeve is manager of Gildersleeve Enterprises and vice president of Gildersleeve Fertilizer Co. in Hudson, Ill. President of the Bloomington Area Alumni Club since 1981, he served as secretary-treasurer from 1975-81. He is the Republican precinct committeeperson in Money Creek Township, McLean County, Ill., and a member of the executive committee of the McLean County Republican Party.

- Mees is Superintendent of the Carterville, Ill., Community Unit School District No. 5. He has been active in alumni programs in many areas. A former member of the Jackson County Alumni Club, Mees served both as president (1977-79) and vice president (1976-77). He taught mathematics at Carbondale's Lincoln Junior High School for six years before he was named principal of Lakeland School in Carbondale. He is married to the former Karla Garnati, '70, M.A. '71, and they have a son, Robert, seven.

- Small is the marketing director for SRGF, Inc. Architects with offices in Carbondale, Champaign and Springfield, Ill. He was assistant state superintendent for the Illinois Office of Education (1971-76) and has been a principal of several Illinois schools. He was the Democratic candidate for the 21st Congressional District seat in 1974 and has been the president of the Springfield Area SIUC Alumni Club since 1982. He and his wife, Jeannette, have six children.

W. Ray Mofield Selected Alumni Association President

W. Ray Mofield plans to beat the bushes a lot this coming year at the helm of the SIUC Alumni Association.

Elected president of the organization at Homecoming, the 62-year-old Mofield will focus on three areas during his reign: membership, scholarship and dues.

His first goal is to raise the Alumni Association membership from 8,211 to 10,000.

His plan of attack involves getting all regional club and constituent society officers to actively seek new members.

"We want to get everyone involved in making the Association a better organization. If we get more members, we'll get more input," he said.

Mofield hopes the Association will use direct mail membership campaigns to entice persons who may have not been approached previously to join.

Mofield also plans to expand the alumni scholarship programs.

"I want to solicit alumni funds with the hopes of developing a series of scholarships to attract the highly academically motivated students to SIUC," he said.

Finally, Mofield wants to discuss the possibility of increasing alumni dues to form a larger financial base for better Association programming.

"The current cost of $10 for an individual annual membership is too much of a bargain," Mofield said. "All the major universities charge much more and are able to offer diverse alumni activities because of it."

Ultimately, Mofield wants to publish the names of association members in a directory that lists current addresses and occupations.

"If we promote and publicize the SIUC alumni who are making contributions and joining the Alumni Association, it will encourage others to do the same," Mofield said.

Mofield gained experience in alumni activities in the early 1950s when he served two terms as president of his undergraduate alma mater's alumni association at Murray State University. He received a distinguished alumnus award last year from the organization.

The second child of the late K.E. and Zela Irvin Mofield of Hardin, Ky., Mofield graduated with distinction from MSU in 1943. After spending 16 months in the U.S. Navy, he was hired to teach speech and Spanish at the Vienna (Ill.) High School.

He was encouraged to pursue a communications career after he won a radio contest. A short stint at the Northwestern University Graduate School in 1945 led the way to a 13-year job at WPAD, an AM-FM radio station in Paducah, Ky., where he ultimately became station manager.

He received his master's degree in economics from Columbia University in 1958. Mofield then served five years as director of academic affairs for the SIUC Radio and Television Department until he received a Ph.D. in communications in 1964.

Returning to MSU that same year as an executive assistant to the president, Mofield held that position until he was named chairman of the university's Department of Communications in 1968. He retired from administrative duties in 1975 and has been teaching in the department since then.

He is married to the former Janie Bloomingburg, a three-degree MSU graduate, who is the chairman of home economics at the Marshall County (Ky.) High School. Their daughter, Ruth Ann, is director of broadcasting at Freed-Hardemann College in Henderson, Tenn..

Other officers elected Nov. 5, 1983, at Homecoming are: president-elect Harold Kuehn, '51, of Du Quoin; vice presidents W.A. Butts, M.A. '62, Ph.D. '68, of Upper Marlboro, Md., and Paul Conti, '72, MBA '74, of Glen Ellyn; secretary JoAnn Cunningham Jungers, '52, of Alton; and treasurer Lee Roy Brandon, '58, of Herrin.

Alumni College in June 1984 Is New Campus Event

Alumni and their families are invited to a special on-campus event next summer: the inauguration of a stimulating new program called the Alumni Emeritus College.

The program will combine education, recreation and social activities for the entire family. Special events for teenagers and young children will be included in the program.

The Alumni Emeritus College is sponsored by the Alumni Association, the SIU Foundation and the Emeritus College. The latter organization is composed of retired SIUC professors and administrators who live in the Carbondale area, and is headed by Arnold J. Auerbach, an emeritus professor of the College of Human Resources.

Alumni will be able to visit with some of their former professors and introduce their families to the campus. Bus tours, supervised outings and a picnic are being considered as part of the social events.

Under consideration, too, are the topics to be covered during the June 10-16, 1983, event. Among the possibilities are genealogy, the ecology of Southern Illinois, fitness and health, foreign relations, religion and world affairs, the aging of Americans, personal growth, investment management, morality and nuclear weapons, and topics related to music and art.

The cost will be kept low, and will include six nights of lodging and 17 meals.

1—SIUC President Albert Somit gave his annual "State of the University" speech at the Homecoming luncheon. Among the goals Somit discussed were several related to the Alumni Association: upping the number of chapters by 25, increasing the membership by several thousand, adding more programs, and expanding the Career Planning and Placement Center's services.
2—Dorothy Morris, widow of late SIUC President Delyte Morris (1948-70), greeted John C. Holt, winner of a 1983 Alumni Achievement Award.
3—Greg Masters (left) of Hagerstown, Md., and Brent Wallarab of Sparta, Ill., helped entertain the halftime crowd as part of the Marching Salukis.
5—Jay King, who recently retired after 28 years as assistant director of the Alumni Association, received a plaque (and, and more important, a kiss) from Pat Cook Hunsaker, outgoing president of the Association.
7—"Get Hot Dogs!" hands were everywhere in McAndrew Stadium on Homecoming, as the Salukis defeated Illinois State University 28-26 before a capacity crowd.

Homecoming
Award

Teacher of Teachers:
John E. King
1983 "Great Teacher"

Being in the limelight and tapped for honors is nothing new to John E. King, retired professor and former chairman of the higher education department at SIUC.

But when he was selected the 1983 Alumni Great Teacher at the annual Alumni Homecoming Luncheon, Nov. 5, King was humbled.

"I think I am more grateful for this award than any other one I have received. It was a declaration from my former students that I apparently had done my job. That is very gratifying, because the award came from the heart," King said.

The 70-year-old Oklahoma City, Okla., native was the 24th SIUC faculty member to be selected for the accolade honoring classroom excellence.

King, who retired in August 1983, was chosen by a vote of the SIUC Alumni Association membership. He received $1,000 and an engraved plaque.

He had headed two institutions of higher learning and had been president of a nationwide education association before coming to the Carbondale campus in 1967.

King was president of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education in 1966-67. He served as president of Emporia State University of Kansas (1953-1966) and the University of Wyoming (1966-67) and as provost for the University of Minnesota, Duluth campus (1951-53).

In 1961, he was appointed by President John F. Kennedy as a member of the National Citizen's Advisory Committee on Vocational Rehabilitation. He served on this committee through 1970. In 1974, he was named by President Lyndon B. Johnson to the National Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

While at SIUC, King served on approximately 200 master's or Ph.D. committees. Ninety percent of the 600 graduate degree holders in the higher education department currently hold administrative, teaching or research positions in the education field.

King said he is impressed by three factors he feels are unique to SIUC.

First, the quality of non-traditional students (military personnel and re-entry working students) is unequal to any institution King has been associated with during his 50 years in education.

Second, at SIUC it is possible to find teaching, research and service projects being given equal importance. At other major universities, King feels, the institution will usually focus on only one of them, not on all three at once.

Finally, the University serves the distinctly identifiable region of Southern Illinois. Many other institutions don't serve the areas where they are located as well as SIUC does, King said.

"SIUC is a great institution and has the opportunity to do great things. I am happy to have had the experience of being affiliated with the University," King said.

He has received Distinguished Alumni Citations from North Texas State University (1967), his undergraduate alma mater, and from the University of Arkansas (1983), where he had obtained his master's degree. He received his Ph.D. in rural education from Cornell University in 1941.

In the near future, King plans to do consulting and development work in South Carolina, as well as spend some time traveling before he returns to Carbondale, where he continues to make his home.

King is married to the former Glennie Beanland of Prosper, Texas. They have two daughters—Ann Reynolds of Los Angeles, Calif., who is chancellor of the California State University System, and Rebecca Wright of Olympia, Wash., a lawyer and affirmative action officer for Evergreen State College.

Salukis Seek Play-off Invitation

It's the snowball effect all over again. Not since 1967 has any Saluki sports team gained as much notoriety as the 1983 football team, undefeated in 10 out-ings and the nation's number one 1-AA team.

The Salukis success has touched off inquiries from major newspapers and radio and television stations in Chicago, St. Louis, Atlanta and Memphis. Queries have also come from alumni, professional football scouts and other football coaches, among others.

"There definitely is a lot of excitement. That's something we haven't seen since 1967 when the Saluki basketball team won the National Invitational Tournament in New York," said Fred Huff, assistant athletic director and acting sports information director.

No Saluki football team since the 1913 onset of the sport has won 10 games in a row. The 1930 team, which compiled a 9-0 slate, was the only undefeated team prior to this season.

Nationally, the SIUC footballers have never been regarded as a threat until this year, when the Dogs slowly rose in the 1-AA rankings to the premier spot on Oct. 25. During the first week of November, a Sports Illustrated magazine poll tabbed the Salukis as number 20 for all football teams in the country. The number one team, Nebraska (10-0), is the only other undefeated squad in the nation.

In his eighth year as head coach, Ray Dempsey, who achieved his 50th SIUC victory Oct. 29 in a 41-3 Saluki trouncing of New Mexico State, could clinch his only undefeated season in 10 years of college coaching.

A master of resuscitating dying football teams, the 47-year-old Dempsey has posted a 51-36 win-loss record at SIUC, placing second as the coach with most wins. Only William McAndrew, who coached the 1930 team, has more wins (85 in 23 seasons).

The Salukis breezed through their season opener at Macomb beating Western Gary Carter (right), a senior defensive tackle from East Alton, and Daryl Young, a senior linebacker from Mayport, Fla., anxiously anticipate the outcome of the SIUC-Illinois State game Nov. 5. The Salukis defeated their upstate rival, 28-26, in a spine-tingling, emotion-packed contest before a record Homecoming crowd of 16,600 in McAndrew Stadium.

Illinois University, 38-6. In the second game of the season, Terry Taylor, a senior cornerback from Youngstown, Ohio, shut down Eastern Illinois University's hopes of toppling the Salukis Sept. 10 in the final 20 seconds. Before 12,800 sun-baked screaming fans, Taylor blocked a 20-yard field goal attempt to preserve the 17-14 victory.

The next victim was Southeast Missouri which fell by the wayside 56-7 Sept. 17 in Carbondale. The footballers took to the road and defeated Northern Iowa, 52-9, and Arkansas State, 35-28. The team then returned home to beat Drake, 28-9, Oct. 8 before downing Southwest Missouri, 24-6, and Indiana State 34-21, in away games. A crowd of 14,000 then watched the New Mexico State Aggies tumble 41-3 on Oct. 29.

Upset-minded Illinois State harassed the Salukis in a hair-raising Homecoming confrontation Nov. 5 before 16,600 (the largest crowd ever in McAndrew Stadium). A called-back touchdown, a missed two-point conversion, and a series of interceptions and recovered fumbles enabled the Salukis to squeeze by 28-26 in their last home game.

Emotion-filled Saluki fans tore down the goal posts for the second straight week, an event not witnessed on campus since the 1967 Salukis upset Tulsa, 16-13.

Only one game (at Wichita State) stands between the Salukis and the Missouri Valley Championship, an unbeaten season, the number one 1-AA rating, and a preferential position in the NCAA playoffs.

If SIUC beats the Shockers, the Salukis will become the first MVC team in history to post an 11-0 slate and only the fifth team to hit a perfect season mark—the first since Oklahoma A & M (now Oklahoma State) finished 9-0 in 1945.

The NCAA will release 1-AA playoff pairings Nov. 20. Twelve teams, as voted on by a four-member NCAA committee, will be invited to play, with the top four teams getting byes in the first round to be played Nov. 26.

Should SIUC remain undefeated, it would be guaranteed a first round bye and would play in the quarterfinals Dec. 3, possibly hosting the game at McAndrew Stadium.

Check with your local media for the latest details.

The semifinals will be Dec. 10 at campus sites, while the championship Dec. 17 will be played at Johnson Hagood Stadium in Charleston, S.C. The semifinals will be televised regionally by CBS; the finals will be shown nationally by ABC.

Should SIUC be selected to host a play-off game, tickets can be ordered from Judie Mouw, Men's Athletics, SIUC, Carbondale, IL 62901. All non-SIUC student tickets will be $7 each, while University students will pay $2. For more information, phone (618) 453-5319.

New Saluki Records

The biggest Saluki casualty this season has been the record book. The Dogs' antics have provided the following:

—Most interceptions in one game (eight against New Mexico State). Ties 1-AA record, sets Missouri Valley Conference record.

—Most touchdowns scored on punt returns in a season (four). Ties 1-AA record.

—Most interceptions returned for touchdowns in a season (three, Donnell Daniel, SIUC). New 1-AA record.

—Most extra points in a row (47, Ron Miller, SIUC). New 1-AA record, new MVC record.

—Most yards gained on interceptions (447). New 1-AA record.

—Most touchdowns on interception returns (4). Ties 1-AA record.

—Most paid attendance at McAndrew Stadium (16,600, SIUC vs. Illinois State, Nov. 5, 1983, Homecoming).

—In addition, every time Rick Johnson, senior quarterback from Carol Stream, Ill., puts his hands on the ball, he adds to the nine passing and five total offense records broken last season. This season, he set a record in most career attempts with 812, breaking Jim Hart's 671 record set during 1963-65.

Jim Dwyer Plays in 1983 World Series

A milestone in Saluki sports was surpassed in the 1983 World Series this October.

Baltimore Orioles outfielder James E. (Jim) Dwyer became the only Saluki ever to play in a World Series.

SIUC sports buffs might recall that another Saluki, George Vukovich, now of the Cleveland Indians, was a member of the 1980 World Champion Philadelphia

Phillies team, but he didn't play in the Series.

Dwyer, a 33-year-old left-hander from Tinley Park, was a part of the Orioles' platoon outfield. He hit .286 with eight homers and 36 RBIs during the regular season.

He was one-for-four (a double) in the American League Championship Series against the Chicago White Sox.

In the Series, Dwyer, a 1973 SIUC accounting graduate, became only the 18th player in baseball history to hit a homer in his first at-bat. He finished with three hits in eight trips for a .375 average.

Van Winkle Predicts Cagers Will Show More Progress

Allen Van Winkle's third season as SIUC's head basketball coach gets underway Nov. 28 at home when the Salukis take on the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

Credited with turning the Saluki program around the past two seasons when his teams have posted an overall 20-35 record, Van Winkle is predicting that this year's club will show even more progress.

"The fact that our players are mentally and emotionally aware that this is our first 'real group' is extremely important," Van Winkle said recently. "And I'm not sure anyone other than ourselves can fully appreciate that."

The "real group" includes just four returning lettermen from last year's club which won five of 18 Missouri Valley Conference games and nine of 28 overall.

Starters include Harry Hunter, a 6-9 senior center from Lake Cormorant, Miss.; Pie Walker, a 6-6 senior forward from Flint, Mich.; and Dan Weiss, a 6-5 sophomore forward from Cincinnati, Ohio. A fifth letterman, Brian Welch, a 6-3 sophomore guard from Carbondale, will be red-shirted and will sit out this season.

Newcomers to the Saluki program are Cleveland Bibbens, a 6-6 junior forward from Pittsburgh, Pa.; Roy Birch, a 6-2 junior guard from Atchison, Kan.; Bernard Campbell, a 6-3 junior guard from Robbins, Ill.; Chris George, a 6-6 junior forward from Columbus, Ohio; Ernie Hubbard, a 5-11 junior guard from Maywood, Ill.; Nate Bufford, a 6-2 junior guard from Auburn, Ala.; and Ken Perry, a 6-11 junior center from Evansville, Ind.

Curt Reed, a 6-4 freshman guard from McLeansboro, who currently is a member of the Saluki football team, will join the team at the end of the footballers' season. Doug Novsek, a 6-4 freshman guard from Lawrenceville, Ill., who transferred from the University of West Virginia, will be eligible at the beginning of the second semester.

The home games include Indiana State-Evansville (Nov. 30); Mississippi Valley State (Dec. 2); St. Louis (Dec. 7); Busch Shoot Out I (Dec. 9-10) with Alcorn State, Mercer and Columbia; West Texas State (Jan. 7); Indiana State (Jan. 9); Wichita State (Jan. 21); Drake (Jan. 26); Bradley (Feb. 2); Creighton (Feb. 9); Tulsa (Feb. 11); and Illinois State (Feb. 23).

The Salukis will play a Big Ten power, Wisconsin at Madison (Dec. 3); in the Bayou Classic in Lafayette, La., featuring Southwestern Louisiana, California-Santa Barbara, and Eastern Washington (Dec. 16-17); and the Rebel Round-Up in Las Vegas, Nevada, with Nevada-Las Vegas, James Madison University and Southern Methodist University (Dec. 22-23).

Other away games include: Creighton (Jan. 12), Wichita State (Jan. 14), Bradley (Jan. 19), Illinois State (Jan. 28), Indiana State (Feb. 4), West Texas State (Feb. 18), Tulsa (Feb. 25) and Drake (March 1).
